Writing in minor (the author of the video likes "do-based" minor. That is not the only way to do it. Most prefer "la-based" minor)

(this Youtuber gives several tutorials. We encourage you to mess around with the tools on your own, especially during the first week. If you get stuck, his videos might be helpful)

Each week, you will be given a "Prompt" of sorts.
Work on the prompt. If you need to pause and come back later, "save" the project and copy/paste the link somewhere where you won't lose it, then you can come back to it later.

When you're satisfied with the product, submit to the tab under "collaboration space" on your class notebook.
